THIRTY-FOUR DEATH TOLL IN AIR WRECK

Airship Roma In Flames As It Crashes To Earth, Prevents Rescue.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 21.—Thirty-four men were killed, eight were injured seriously and three were uninjured or only slightly bruised when the giant airship Roma, with her crew and a number of civilians, totaling forty-five in all, aboard, plunged today from a thousand feet or more in the air to the ground at the Hampton Roads naval base.

The accident presumably was caused by a broken rudder and as the huge dirigible plunged to earth it capsize across a high-tension electric line, bursting into a roaring furnace of blazing hydrogen gas.

Long after dark tonight, many hours after her fall, the ship was still a mass of flames from end to end of her 410-foot mass. The fire fed on the million cubic feet of gas which distended the great bag for the flight and made all attempts at rescue work futile.

Nearly a dozen of those aboard were picked up alive, and one of these died on the way to the hospital. All of those who survived the fire escaped by jumping as the ship struck. The others, panned in the hull of the fallen bag, were burned to death.

Thirty-three Bodies Found.

The flames finally were brought into submission by three fire departments, who fought them with chemicals. And then derrieks began picking up the wreckage, which consisted of scarcely more than the aluminum framework and the six Liberty motors of the once proud ship of the air. Within the wreckage lay the bodies, practically all charred beyond recognition. But before the night had passed thirty-three bodies had been removed accounting for the last of those who were known to have taken flight on the fatal voyage.

Accounts of survivors and of eye-witnesses as to what had happened appeared to agree tonight that the huge kite-like structure of the stern rudder, itself as large as a bombing plane, had slipped to one side as the Roma drove along a thousand feet above the army base.

She was making a trial flight with a new battery of Liberty motors.

They were installed to replace Italian engines bought with her in Italy, but which have not proved satisfactory. Installation was completed at Langley Field two weeks ago.

It was just before 2 o'clock when those below at the army base at Hampton Roads, their attention caught by the approaching thunder of the six motors, looked up to see the Roma dip down from her straight flight. They agreed that the rudder seemed to have slipped bodily down and to one side.

Missed Safety By Few Yards.

The ship nosed steeply down. As she came closer it was seen that her crew was hurrying out and from the ports in the fragile fabric that formed the covering of the space between her keel and back, the living and operating quarters of the ship. The dipping blunt nose of the bag did not respond. On the ship came, unchecked in her glide earthward, head first. Her commander could not force her the few hundred feet that would have dropped her into the waters of the bay and comparative safety for her people.

Below ran the high double wires of the high power electric line. They carried a 2,300-volt current. The Roma's nose, shed with its aluminum guard, thrust into the wires, broke them as the ship flattened to earth and rolled over, and the next moment came the noise as of an explosion and the flames burst out along the hull space.

There was a rush of men to the rescue from the army post and the navy base beyond.

Just as the Roma neared the wires two men were seen to leap from high up in her slanting hull. As the stricken, flaming monster writhed in her first death agony ten more dropped from doors or ports, or through holes they tore in the fabric sides that enclosed them. Some leaped from the platform where the engines stood, far out from the hull.

So swift was the flare of the gas flame that rescuers were driven back before its terrific heat. They watched helplessly as the great eighty-foot bag shriveled in the fierce blaze of the liberated gas. The Roma was a wall of flame a city block long and until the thousands of gallons of chemicals and water had checked the holocaust it was impossible to reach the comrades mangled and dead in that fiery furnace.

The ship left no passenger list behind her when she set out for a brief trial run from Langley. She is known to have carried many officers and men as passengers, however, in addition to her operating crew. As she rose from the field her commander leaned out to signal that he had forty-four persons aboard. It is believed he did not include one civilian on the ship and that she actually carried forty-five.

Officers who knew personally many of the officers and enlisted men were unable to identify a single one of the victims so badly charred was each—virtually cooked to death in the mass of wreckage when the explosion and flames encompassed them.

Only those in the formal part of the operating compartment of the ship had a chance for their lives. Several were injured severely by jumping but three came out practically unhurt and were discharged from the hospital within a few hours after the disaster.

Lieutenant Hurt, who, with Captain Reed, was the principal pilot of the Roma, was one of these. He jumped when the ship was only a few yards from the ground. A civilian, Roy Hurley, also escaped unhurt, as did Master Sergeant Peck.

Of the forty-five who left the Langley Field air station this afternoon, only eleven survived the accident. Some of these, more dead than alive, lay on their cots at the United States Public Health Service Hospital with burned and broken limbs swathed in bandages. Some had their faces smeared with cream to relieve them of their intense suffering, while others lay asleep or unconscious with only their closed eyes visible. All who were able to talk were suffering from shock.

Maj. J. D. Reardon, who was in the control cabin at the time of the accident, said that the work of the officers in charge was excellent.

"Lieutenant Burt and Captain Mabry were at their wheels," the Major said. "The ship gave a duck and I saw Lieutenant Burt pull with all his might on the elevator lever. He yelled out, 'she won't respond,' and then 'cut the motors.' One by one, I heard the motors shut off and then we struck. If the motors had not been shut off we would have hit the ground much harder."

NO-CREEK REVIVAL VERY SUCCESSFUL

The series of revival meetings commenced some time ago at No-creek, Wesley Chapel, are still in progress and much good is being done in that community. Yesterday's reports showed 42 professions and a general revival of spiritual interest in the church. The preaching by Miss Alpha Cochran, Evangelist, is bringing results and is much complimented by those attending the services.

MRS. REBECCA MARKS, LONG ILL, SUCCEUMS

Mrs. Rebecca Barnett Marks, widow of the late J. W. Marks of Louisville, died at her home in Crestwood, near Louisville, Tuesday February 21st., after an illness of three years duration.

Mrs. Marks was a daughter of the late Lowry Barnett, born and reared in Ohio County, near Beda, and has many relatives and friends residing in various parts of the County. She was a sister-in-law to Mrs. T. S. Marks of this city.

Burial of the remains will take place in Cave Hill Cemetery, Louisville, to-day.

FIFTEEN POUNDS OF COIN FOUND IN MAN'S POCKETS

Boston, Feb. 21.—Coina weighing fifteen pounds were found today in the pockets and lining of the clothing of Solon R. Handy, 92 years old, peddler, by attendants in the hospital where he was treated after being struck by a taxicab. The money, in nickels, dimes, quarters and half dollars, as well as a few foreign pieces, amounting to $184.

SINN FEIN BARS SPLIT ON PACT

3 Year Delay In Election Proposed; To Await Developments.

Dublin, Feb. 21.—There is a possibility that a split in the Sinn Fein over the Anglo-Irish treaty will be avoided. The Ard Fheils, national Sinn Fein convention, which met at the mansion house today to define the attitude of the Sinn Fein clubs on the treaty, whether for a free state or a republic, adjourned until tomorrow with instructions to the leaders of the two parties to come together and devise a plan to keep the Sinn Fein organization united.

The unexpected outcome was due to the direct initiative of the meeting in general and was not prompted by the leaders. After Eamonn de Valera had presented a resolution pledging adherence to the constitution adopted by the Ard Fheils in 1917, looking to "international recognition of Ireland as an independent republic," and stated his objections to the treaty on republican principles, the debate, unlike the discussion in the Dail Eireann, did not settle down into an examination of the merits and demerits of the treaty.

Arthur Griffith, president of the Dail Eireann, replying to Mr. De Valera, reasserted that the treaty gave Ireland the opportunity it needed.

Cheers from both sides greeted the suggestion of Father Gaynor, an influential member of the standing committee, composed of both supporters and opponents of the treaty, for a three-years' postponement of the elections and proved that the sentiment of the convention was for unity in the organization in view of possible eventualities and that it should not be difficult for Mr. De Valera and Mr. Griffith to reach an arrangement avoiding disruption of the organization on which Ireland, in the case of a breach between the British ministers and Ireland, might be compelled to rely.

De Valera argued that elections at present would be unfair because the Irish people would have only the vaguest idea of what they were offered in exchange for the republic. Michael Collins did his best to meet this objection and indicated that he did not desire that the elections be rushed but was unable to give a guarantee against elections. He pointed out that so long as the elections were delayed it was open to the supporters of De Valera to defeat the provisional government in the Dail Eireann and that defeat by even one vote on a minor point would compel the government to resign.

Mr. Griffith emphasized the same points and charged De Valera was trying to avoid a decision by the people. De Valera resented this and meeting the objection of Collins and Griffith that they could not guarantee that Mr. Lloyd George would not force elections, contended that no elections could be held without the sanction of the Dail Eireann and the army.

Subsequent speakers reinforced the plea that the leaders should endeavor to avoid a split, the most notable being priests, who, without exception took this line. The matter finally was settled by the intervention of Richard Mulcahy, minister of defense and head of the army. Mr. Mulcahy framed a resolution directing that the leaders meet tonight and seek a basis of agreement for submission tomorrow.

Several leading members of both sides, questioned later, expressed doubt as to the possibility of accommodation. Mr. Collins, however, was strongly of the opinion, which he voiced forcibly, that the situation would so improve that three months hence united decisions impossible now, might then be reached.

Despite the long-drawn out and arduous session in the cold and draught hall, the general tone of the convention was unexpectedly harmonious. It is unquestioned that the rank and file are earnestly desirous to prevent a split and every move toward the continuation of unity was heartily applauded. Just before adjournment both Mr. De Valera and Mr. Collins admitted they had entered the meeting believing a compromise was impossible, and that the attitude of the delegates surprised them.

So strong was the sentiment for unity that a priest, who suggested that the party leaders should be deposed if necessary to keep the organization intact, received applause.

OIL ROOM IS ON THE ROAD AGAIN

Operations have been commenced by Scott & Hickey, oil operators of Toledo, Ohio, on the farm of James Patton, five miles north-east of Hartford. The excitement has started in our little city. The oil men are commencing to come in from different fields and are hustling to secure leases.

The shallow well owned by Holbrook & Co., which was drilled to the depth of 462 feet over four months ago has been cleaned out and parked and is said to be doing eight barrels per day. The deep wells on the Carter farm which were drilled in more than twelve years ago and which have produced thousands of barrels of oil are still a paying proposition. The people here are expecting a big boom within the next few weeks.

IF UNITED STATES DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Is To Be From The Fourth District Why Not Make It An Ohio County Man?

Until the last few weeks, the personal of the to-be successor of W. V. Gregory, United States District Attorney for the Western District of Kentucky, had been apparently settled. It seemed a forgone conclusion that Judge McKinzie Moss, of Bowling Green, would succeed Mr. Gregory, but these plans were foiled a few weeks ago when, unannounced, Judge Moss accepted the position of Assistant Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Since the announcement of his appointment to, and his acceptance of this position many possible candidates for the position of District Attorney have been mentioned in the public press of the State. But none so far mentioned have seemed to meet with general approval. The general trend of press comment, seems to indicate that the appointee should be a Fourth District man. If he is to be a Fourth District man, why not make it an Ohio County man?

We have a man in our midst that measures up to the requirements of the office in point of qualification, training, and adaptability, in the person of ex-Commonwealth Attorney, C. E. Smith. It is certain that the incumbent will be called upon to undertake a more systematic enforcement of the prohibition laws of the Federal Government. Has not Mr. Smith fully demonstrated his capabilities for such a task by his splendid services, while Commonwealth Attorney? It is the consensus of opinion of people who are familiar with the facts, that the State prohibition laws were more strictly enforced in the Sixth Judicial District, than in most any section of the State. This result was brought about, in a great measure at least, by the efforts of Mr. Smith. The other duties of the office are in line with the training, practice and experience of our fellow Countyman. Aside from the training which especially befits Mr. Smith for the position, he is yet a young man, active and vigorous.

We do not know whether Mr. Smith will be an applicant for appointment to the position, but feel sure he would not decline the position should it be offered him. Ohio is the largest Republican county in the Western part of the State, and is certainly entitled to substantial recognition in the selection of Federal appointees.

If the appointment is to come to the Fourth District, and it is logically and politically entitled to it, no better man can be found therein than our townman, in fact we are of the opinion that no more suitable man can be found in the Western part of the State.

DISABLED OFFICER AID BILL PASSES SENATE

Washington, Feb. 12.—The Hursum bill, giving disabled emergency officers of the American expeditionary forces the same retirement privileges as regular army officers, was passed today by the Senate, 50 to 14, and transmitted to the House.

NEW SHOALS BID UP TO CONGRESS

Alabama Power Company's Offer Barrier In Ford's Way

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Announcement by Secretary Weeks today that he would submit to Congress tomorrow for acceptance or rejection the Alabama Power Company's offer to purchase and lease the Muscle Shoals nitrate and waterpower projects submitted to him Tuesday, added to the possibilities of further delay in Congress of consideration of Henry Ford's offer.

The Alabama company's offer, it was said, would be addressed tomorrow to the speaker of the House and president of the Senate and be referred by them probably to the Military Affairs Committee of the House and Agricultural Committee of the Senate, both of which are investigating the Ford proposal. Chairman Kahn announced tonight that the House body would include its study of the Ford offer before undertaking hearings on the new proposal, but would not report them separately to the House.

The plan in recommending acceptance or rejection of the offers to the full membership of the House, the chairman said, would be to prepare a joint report on all proposals Congress might receive. In this manner, it was explained, the Ford offer would remain in the committee's hands, preventing action by the House until all proposals the war secretary might submit were investigated.

Weeks Sees "Better Offer."

Mr. Kahn said he expected to conclude the hearings on Mr. Ford's offer this week and would immediately begin an examination of that from the Alabama Power Company which Secretary Weeks indicated today considered a "better offer" in some respects than that of Henry Ford, merits of each offer he transmits will be made known to Congress by letters of transmission accepting the proposals.

The House committee today interrogated J. O. Hammit, vice president of the Air Nitrates Corporation, a subsidiary of the American Cyanamid Company, of Maine, who defeated the rights of the former concern to purchase nitrate plant No. 2 at Muscle Shoals upon as favorable terms as the government might accept from other private enterprises. He submitted a contract signed by the corporation and War Department officials under date of June 8, 1918, when it was agreed to build the plant and which contained a section extending optional privileges to the air nitrates subsidiary to buy the property should it be sold by the government.

"This constituted a solemn and binding agreement," Mr. Hammit said, adding that if it was violated by the government thru acceptance of the Ford proposal, the corporation would reluctantly instruct its attorneys to resist such action in the courts. He asserted that a decision by the government to disregard the agreement would reduce the standard of business morality to a lower degree than ever had been approached by a private concern.

Claim Prior Right.

He declared the proposal to "give the plant to a man who did nothing to develop it," and in addition, "give him the cheapest water power on the American continent," would be a violation of the government's pledge to the air nitrates corporation which he declared, had placed its every facility at the disposal of the country when the war needs were greatest. He explained that the nitrates corporation and the cyanamid company had lost money on government contracts, and denied statements previously made before the committee that the ten men who created the former concern had made profits aggregating $2,000,000 from a capital of $1,000 or $100 each.

The witness explained that their nitrates subsidiary was formed in order that the holders of cyanamid company stock might be protected in failed to be carried out, but added that in each case the contracts were filled 100 per cent.

"All we asked for the use of the patents and processes," he said, "was the right to buy the properties if the government decided to sell after the emergency. That was a necessary protection to ask, as they represented our greatest assets and we were anxious they should not be made available to a competitor."

LOCAL SCHOOL PAPER MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE

The H. H. S. (meaning Hartford High School) Wizard a paper edited and managed by the high school students, made its initial appearance last week. The journal is a credit to those responsible for its make-up, and should prove a big boost for the school. It is planned to issue it monthly during the remainder of the present semester.

RESIDENCE BURNED

The residence of Mr. John Chapman, near McHenry, was destroyed by fire Friday morning of last week. A portion of the household articles were saved from the flames. The loss is partly covered by insurance. Mr. Chapman suffered painful burns in attempting to extinguish the fire.

LOCAL GIRLS AGAIN HUMBLE GREENVILLE

Hartford High Takes Second Game From Coach Diddle's Quintette.

The Hartford High School girls, coached by a member of the clan of equalrighters that was not, but now is, Miss Florence Nelson, took coach Ed Diddle's High School Girls of Greenville into camp for the second time by the score of 8 to 7. This time it was on the local court and it happened Wednesday night, the 22.

The game was fast and full of thrills. No game was ever played on the local court where a better guarding was witnessed, at least that is the general verdict of the fans and faettes. Neither was it an old-time mother Hubbard sort of an affair. No air! they mixed it up, it was a rub and it looked to us like the best team won. Almost every attempt at passing and team play was broken-up early in the effort. Harry May (we nearly said was the eleventh man on the floor) was the eleventh party on the floor, making the decisions throughout the game. Harry calls a good game, there has not been a klick on his work from any visiting team or coach during the whole season. If there was an off-side decision it was not given the home team, and we are not saylag there were any.

The line-up was as follows:

Hartford		Greenville
Barnett	3 F	Tinsley	7
Clark	2 F	Dexter	0
Carter	3 C	Clemmons	0
King	0 G	Head	0
Kirk	0 G	Ford	0

Subs for Hartford Howard and Henry; for Greenville, Smith and Brooks. No changes were made in players during the game, those starting going the whole route. Three of the points made by Tinsley for Greenville were on free throws.

Something went wrong with the timekeeper's waterbury according to several fans who also kept tab on the time and if the time noted by said fans was correct three scores made by the visiting girls were landed in the overtime played. If there was an error in the time it was no fault of Greenville's however, as the Prophet kept the time and if there was an error in time we do not suppose it was intentional, as the fellow whose first name is Elijah and the next Thomas would not, on purpose, pull that sort of stunt.

MOORMAN LADY TAKES WOOD ALCOHOL, DIES

Mrs. Ruby Allen, wife of Chester Allen, died at her home at Moorman, late Monday evening of wood alcohol poisoning, deliberately administered by her own hand, so it is said, early in the day. Mrs. Allen was about 22 years of age and an attractive woman. Funeral services were conducted from the home Wednesday morning, after which the remains were conveyed to Equality, this County, where interment took place shortly after noon.

Mrs. Allen was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Igleheart and besides her husband is survived by one child.

PARADISE ON ERIE IS DISCOVERED

Wild Fowl Flock To Home Of Man Who Treats Their Wounds

Newbern, N. C., Feb. 18.—A tag bearing a number of verse from the scriptures and the name of James Miner, Kingsville, Ontario, found tied to the leg of a wild duck killed by Clyde Keener of Trenton, Jones County, near here has brought to light the existence of a haven for wild fowl on the north shore of Lake Erie to which the feathered tribes flock in huge numbers. Mr. Keener wrote Mr. Miner advising him of the finding of the tag.

The latter in an answering letter stated that wild ducks and geese stop at his farm during the course of their migratory journeys and that he and the birds are the best friends.

He said he had built a pond for the feathered tourists and that he feeds them 500 bushels of corn each year during their two months stay at his place.

Bird Fancier's Letter.

Mr. Miner's letter, in part, follows: "Thank you for having reported finding the tag. I now have tags returned to me off wild-geese and ducks from North Carolina to Hudson Bay. In several instances the tags have been found by Indians in the Far North after shooting the birds and they have taken them to Hudson Bay agents, who forwarded them to me.

"I have had tags returned from twenty-three different States and provinces, the farthest South being Guyana, La., and the farthest West being Eaglefield, Saskatchewan.

"I try to tag all the birds that spend some time at my place. Forty per cent of those that I tag in the fall return to me the following spring. Others stay here all the time, in spite of the fact that the weather grows very cold. As I am writing you there are about seventy-five wild geese and forty ducks feeding within fifty feet of me. They are keeping a small hole open in the pond and they are depending on me for food.

Honking Heard For Miles.

"It took me several years to get the birds coming. At last, however, a small bunch came and they apparently told others, until their little flock grew into a small cloud. In fact, I have seen the wild geese rise up so thick that you could scarcely see through them, and their honking could be heard a mile away.

"During the last six or seven years I have fed them in the months of March and April 500 bushels of corn. When the birds stop off here they seem to leave all fear behind them. Even strange birds, visiting my place for the first time, let me come within a few feet of them. They evidently have been told by the old-timers that there is no danger.

"It is a great sight to see all these birds together. People for miles around have heard of what I am doing and thousands have come to see the sight. Even these strangers can come within forty or fifty feet of the wild birds without causing them any fright. Not a single bird ever has been shot on my premises and the feathered tourists seem to know that, when they stop off here they are on neutral ground.

Doctors Wounded Birds.

"Of course this is not so with regard to the surrounding territory, over which I have no jurisdiction. I have seen men shoot and wound a duck or a goose and I have seen the bird make a desperate effort to reach my place. Sometimes they succeed and permit me to doctor them. At other times they fall to the ground before they can reach the safety zone.

"I am opposed to deliberate slaughter of ducks and geese just for the sake of shooting them. We've got to be careful and call a halt to this destruction, for unless we are careful it will not be many years before geese and ducks are hard to find. I am trying my best to give the birds what protection I can. My system of tagging them is part of this plan. I have received letters from many hunters who have written me that they uphold me in my work.

"There is always fascination in watching the prelude and dislike. Wild birds, of course, consider all men to be their natural enemies. It has been mighty hard for me to convince them that I am their friend.

However, that conviction now seems to be spreading among them rapidly. Hundreds of new birds come here every year. I can always tell when a strange bird arrives. It seems very shy. Not so with the old-timers, however. He comes sailing in as fast as he can, honking a welcome and proceeds to stuff himself on corn. "I have one mallard duck, which was hatched and raised by a domestic fowl in 1912. She has now migrated and returned to me each spring and has raised four families in five summers—two eights and two nines.

"My friend, to see my pets return to me year after year for food and protection after they have evidently shied around and outwitted thousands of hunters who bid in ambush for them, and to see wild geese come home bleeding and with legs broken, makes me feel that my work is really worth while."

For The Children.

Too much care cannot be exercised in selecting a cough medicine for children. It should be pleasant to take, contain no harmful drug and most effective in curing their coughs and colds. Long experience has shown that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy meets these conditions. It is a favorite with many mothers.

BRITISH 1921 LABOR LOSS IS $6,000,000 DOLLARS

London, Feb. 18.—About $6,000,000 working days were lost as the result of labor disputes in the United Kingdom last year, says the Labor Gazette today.

This is the greatest loss of working time from that cause ever recorded in the British Isles and is more than three times that of 1920. The number of workers involved was about 1,800,000.

This compares with a loss of 27,690,000 working hours in 1920 when about 2,000,000 workers were involved in labor disputes.

Periodic Bilious Attacks.

Persons subject to periodic bilious attacks will observe that their appetite fails them just before an attack. That is, they do not really crave food but eat because it is meal time. If they will eat only a light meal and no meat, then take two of Chamberlain's Tablets the attack may be avoided.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE XLVIII.—TERRITORIES

"The Story of our States" would not be complete without a brief mention of the other territory of the United States, which is not included in the actual forty-eight states. The biggest of these territories is Alaska, with an area of 580,884 square miles. This huge region was under Russian domination until 1867 when the United States purchased it for $7,200,000, or less than two cents an acre. There was some grumbling at the time by a few congressmen over "adding a refrigerator to the United States." But the refrigerator has been found to be well stocked with gold, coal, forests and fisheries, so that Alaska has proven a profitable investment.

Hawaii, like Alaska, is a regular territory. In 1898 there was a successful revolution against the Hawaiian queen, and a provisional government was formed under American protection. In 1898, at the request of the population, Hawaii was annexed to the United States.

Porto Rico, Guam and the Philippines were ceded to the United States in 1898 as a result of the Spanish-American war. Porto Rico and the Philippines are dependencies and not territories. Their local affairs are administered by a legislature of two houses and they are represented in the United States by resident commissioners elected by the legislatures. Guam is under the control of naval officers in command of naval stations. Under similar naval control are the Tutuila group and Samoa, which were ceded in 1899 by Great Britain and Germany.

Then there is the Panama Canal Zone, which was purchased from Panama in 1904 for $10,000,000. This is governed by the Isthmian Canal commission.

The year 1917 saw the purchase from Denmark of the Virgin Islands, for $25,000,000. These aggregate only 150 square miles and are temporarily governed by a naval officer.

Finally, there is the District of Columbia, which was organized in 1791, as the seat of our federal government. The residents have no vote for either local or national officials, nor are they represented in congress.

WASHINGTON COMMENT

"I haven't cried yet!"

Uproar words from 16-year-old Carolyn Upshaw, high-school-girl victim of the Knickerbocker Theater disaster. Miss Upshaw made a plucky fight for her life, but her injuries were stronger than her body, and she has passed on.

The heritage of true courage she leaves should be more than an inspiration both to her contemporaries and those older. They should be a battle-cries to the city fathers of every municipality, urging them on to adequate inspection of all places of public assembly and to ruthless condemnation of all structures which cannot be demonstrated safe beyond a doubt.

Three hundred persons in the Knickerbocker, 97 crushed to death, 130 badly injured; suppose the Knickerbocker had been filled to its capacity of nearly 2,000? Suppose the moving picture house which you attend has a beam that is creeping, creeping away from its support? Suppose your child is nightly sitting beneath a sword of Damocles in the form of a concrete roof and a steel truss, which may any moment drop and crush its victims beyond recognition?

The world has been told how they died, these victims of some one's error, but not in what shape the falling masses left them; nor can it ever be told. It is too horrible to tell.

You, Mr. Citizen; you, Mrs. Mother, are directly concerned. It is your business. It is your child who may be the next victim; if not, it is your friend, your relative, your husband or wife. With the memory of those pitifully brave words in your ears, of the little heroine who, with legs crushed so badly that she died, smiled in her agony and said, "I haven't cried yet," do you cry, with a loud voice, to those in authority, and see to it that they allow you and yours to assemble only in safe halls—so shall Miss Upshaw and 95 others not have been crushed to death in vain.

It takes all kinds of legislators to make a government, and it would be a sad world if everyone thought alike. David Harum said "a certain number of fleas is good for a dog; keeps him from broodin' on bein' a dog," and perhaps a certain number of legislators with curious notions of constructive legislation are good for a government!

A bill has been introduced in the National Legislature which, should it be passed (which it won't) would prohibit the flying of kites in the District of Columbia.

A Harvard professor is entreating the legislature of the old Bay State to pass a bill which will deny to children under 13 years of age the privilege of going to the drugstore and buying a stick of candy without written permission from their parents.

Now it only remains for some one to introduce a measure requiring a federal license for all children who wish to play marbles, and the dignity and seriousness of our legislative processes will be upheld to all the world!

A scald burn, or severe cut heals slowly if neglected. The family that keeps a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment on hand is always prepared for such accidents. Price 30c, 60c and $1.20 per bottle. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

INCOME TAX FACTS.

The new requirement of the income tax law that returns shall be made of gross income of $5,000 or more regarding less of the amount of net income upon which the tax is assessed, necessitates careful computation on the part of the taxpayer. "Gross income" includes practically every dollar received by the taxpayer during the year 1921 in salaries, wages, commissions, rents, royalties, interest on bank deposits, cash dividends on stock, "or income from any source whatsoever." "Net income" is gross income less certain deductions provided for by the law, including all business expenses incurred in the conduct of a business, trade, profession, or vocation.

Certain expenditures, however, are not deductible as a business expense when made for the purchase of articles more or less permanent in character, or for permanent improvement of property. For example, a merchant would not be allowed to deduct the amount expended in the erection of a new store, or a farmer the cost of a new tractor or thrashing machine, since such investments are held to be capital investments. The law expressly prohibits the deduction of family or living expenses, such as rent for a dwelling, repairs to a dwelling, cost of food and clothing for the family, education of children, servant's wages, and similar items. Amounts spent during the year 1921 for any of these items are not deductible.

Farmers, ranchers, herdsmen, dairy-men, truck gardeners, vineyard and orchard owners, and other food producers must compute their net and gross incomes for 1921 and ascertain whether an income tax return, or a tax, or both, are due. All gains, profits, and income derived from the sale or exchange of farm products, whether produced on the farm or purchased and resold, must be included in gross income. When a farmer exchanges his products for groceries, clothing, or other merchandise, the fair market value of such goods must be included. Profit received from the sale of farm land, or rent received for the use thereof, must be included.

In determining income, upon which the tax is assessed, the farmer may deduct from gross income all necessary expenses incurred in the operation of his farm during the year 1921. These include cost of cultivation, harvesting, and marketing of his crops, and cost of feed and fertilizer used.

Chronic Constipation.

There are people who never have a movement of the bowels without it is produced by a cathartic. Most of them have brought that condition on themselves by the use of mineral waters and strong cathartics that take too much water out of the system and aggravate the disease they are meant to relieve. A mild laxative tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets affords a gentle movement of the bowels that you hardly realize has been produced by a medicine, and their uses is not so likely to be followed by constipation.

DEPARTMENTS GIVE LIVING COST FACTS

Statistics Prove We Have "Turned The Corner" In Return To Normalcy.

Washington, Feb. 17.—Julius H. Barues, former wheat director, calling attention to the rise of wheat 12 cents and corn 2 cents in a week's period, says: "It is time to quit telling the farmer that he is bankrupt. It is time to quit telling industry that there is no farm market. All farm selling prices are on the up-grade."

The department of labor reports that returns from 1,428 factories, employing more than 500 persons each, indicate that an almost 5 per cent gain in employment has been made since the first of the year. Nearly all industries, outside of steel, textiles and railroads, increased their labor forces. In Detroit, center of the automobile industry, the increase was 8.9 per cent; in Sioux City, Iowa, 21 per cent and in San Francisco, 14.8 per cent. Chicago was listed with a 4 per cent improvement among 40 cities reporting increases.

The bureau of labor statistics reports that in the past 18 months there has been a 19.5 per cent cost of living drop. A further fact comes to light through reports of automobile license offices, the purchasing of new cars being justly regarded as a barometer of good times. Maryland reports a 14 per cent increase in January tag sale for 1922 over the total of 1921.

VIEWS ON WOMEN

The movement for lower heels on women's shoes is making progress as anyone who walks about and observes at all much realize. A well-dressed young woman walking on heels of reasonable height is no longer the odd exception. A girl mincing along the street in high-heeled shoes looks like a cripple, a travesty of herself, an awkward, helpless, ridiculous creature, who has exchanged her birthright of grace and beauty and womanly strength for a silly notion.—Ohio State Journal.

"Women are much like grand opera. You can't have to understand 'em in order to enjoy 'em."—Baltimore Sun.

Why isn't a woman put at the head of the Weather Bureau? Regulating the weather is a task a woman would enjoy.—Kansas City Star.

Men soon become accustomed to any kind of feminine style. They first endure, then pity, then embrace.—Chicago Blade.

The woman who once spanked her son for smoking cigarettes now spans her grandson for stealing her cigarettes.—Johnstown Democrat.

Gns in the stomach or bowels is a disagreeable symptom of a torpid liver. To get rid of it quickly take Herbine. It is a marvelous liver stimulant and bowel purifier. Price 60c. Sold by Ohio County Drug Company.

Harrington—What was the ground for divorce? Carrington—incompatibility; she was a daylight saver and he got home nights on standard time.—New York Sun.

BORING MAY END VOLCANO SECRET

Kilauea To Be Pierced; Try To Solve Heat, Steady Mineral and Other Riddles

Honolulu, T. H., Feb. 18 (Associated Press).—Extensive drillings into the great active volcano of Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, will be undertaken during 1922 in an endeavor to determine the heat of the volcano, the quantity of steam underneath the mineral constituents and to solve other related questions. Prof. T. A. Jaggar, Jr., Government Volcanologist at Hawaii, announced here today.

A fund of $8,000 has been raised to defray the expense of the experiments, $3,000 having been contributed by John Brooks Henderson, scientist, of Washington, D. C., and the remainder having been given by Hilo and Honolulu business men.

"The places of most interest are where the ground is hot from recent or ancient volcanic activity," Professor Jaggar said in explaining the proposed drillings.

"Borings will be undertaken at the sulphur banks, at several places in the bottom of Kilauea crater and in the region of recent lava flows at Kau Desert."

"It is aimed to penetrate the surface where the lava flows are of known date, so to learn what changes of temperature underground have taken place with the passage of time."

"This is the most important scientific and practical problem involved in the boring—how hot is the volcano and what are the steam and water conditions under an active volcano?"

"The practical side of the knowledge of underground temperature which the borings will give, depends on what is learned as to chemical activity which maintains the high temperature in such a boring after the ground is opened to air. If high temperatures are maintained so, possibly at red heat, for years it would be possible to utilize the heat for power."

Kilauea now is unusually quiet but a "livening up" in March, at the equinox, is expected," Professor Jaggar said. He said he based this prediction on statistics of former activities. Ten years ago the volcano was in the same condition as now, he said. Then there was a lava rising in September and one in March.

"We had the rise last September, and I believe it likely that it will occur in March," he said.

HUNGARIAN BUREAU HIT AS U. S. TURNS ALIENS BACK

Budapest, Feb. 18.—The fate of Hungarian immigrants who are being turned back at Ellis Island because they exceed the quota permitted by the American Government is giving great concern to the immigrants' relatives and to the public.

Serious charges are made against the Hungarian Emigration Bureau for permitting the emigrants to go to America in the face of the facts that they knew the quota had been exceeded.

The relatives of these emigrants are preparing an appeal for help to President Warren G. Harding.

U. S. TROOPS IN HAWAII COST $11,729,182 YEAR

Honolulu, T. H., Feb. 18.—Uncle Sam spent $11,729,182.71 to maintain his khaki-clad nephews in the Hawaiian Islands during 1921, according to the disbursement reports of the Hawaiian Department of the Army, which were made public today.

Of the total expenditures, $1,200,000 went to answer the perennial cry of the soldier: "When do we eat?"

The largest item of food expense was for frozen beef, which cost $465,918.09.

Does Your Head Ache? Are You Dizzy? Despondent?

Wonderful Relief is Here Told

Atlanta, Ga.—"About a year ago I was preparing to go to the hospital to die. I had been sick and suffering two years, had dizzy spells, suffered from headache, constipation and a despondent feeling all the time. I had tried many different remedies and got no better. I got to a drug store one day and was talking to the druggist about my condition. He handed me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and said, 'I think that will help you.' Before I had taken all of that one bottle I felt like a new woman. Now I can say, along with thousands of other women, that Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription cured me."—Mrs. G. W. Tidwell, 67 Hampton St.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has made many women happy by making them healthy. Get it at once from your nearest druggist, in either liquid or tablet form. Write Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

FRIDAY.....FEBRUARY 24

Just to be in fashion we will allow as how there is a lot of fallen stars this year, and the year is yet young.

Women are doing most everything, taking the place of man in this, that and the other, so we have just about made up our mind to send our petition in to the Ladies Sewing Circle for membership. If one black ball rejects we don't figure that we will be admitted, though.

To be sure there are some tolerably bright lights in the Kentucky Legislature, but when it's acts are viewed as a whole how is one to disbelieve the theory of evolution—and slow at that? Should it enact that anti-evolution bill, or whatever it is,
it might help some if the Legislature would recommend scourging as a penalty for all, who in any way countenanced the theory of evolution or talked it in public, or at home for the matter of that. It might be a good thing to revive the old law against witches and witchcraft. Burning at the stake would perhaps be about the right sort of penalty for that class, as our forefathers at one time meted out that brand of punishment.

The issue of summonses for parties who have, or who had failed to procure license for keeping or harboring dogs, on or before January the first, as provided by law, has created more local discussion amongst dog owners and others than anything happening recently. No law-abiding citizen, or one who desires to see the law upheld, should censure law enforcement. Yet we hear some criticism of the officers for endeavoring to have the law carried out as intended and still others, many others and quite a few are to be found among those who had summons served upon them, have been heard to approve the officials' action.
The party who paid his money and procured the dog tag has, by a large majority, the right of complaint, or would have had. If the officers quickly sat still and permitted so many to escape, especially when the facts were known to the officers. One instance came under our observation:
A reliable young man stated in our presence that he procured his dog tag as the law directs, but to his certain knowledge none of his adjoining neighbors paid any attention to the matter and were not complying with the law at all. Cases of this character were being addressed to the attention of the officials almost daily.
It has been decided that the County, or Quarterly Court is without jurisdiction in so far as final disposal of the cases are concerned, but the County Court does have the right to hold each individual over to await the action of the grand jury, about that there is no question. Each individual who fails to comply with this special act is subject to indictment, and in so far as the constitutionality of the act is concerned, with reference to construction placed upon it by the higher Court, the law is enforceable, but to indict by grand jury and the tedious methods of trial
by Circuit Court is much more objectionable than by County Court, if jurisdiction were given the latter.
Cases of this character show the idiotic turn of the mind of some of our former legislators. The County Court has been shorn of jurisdiction in almost all sorts of prosecutions, other than breach of the peace and we think that it would be well to turn that offense over to the circuit courts for prosecution, so that County Courts and County Attorneys would not have any thing whatever to do with keeping law and order for and in the community. All of this delay and lack of speedy trial goes further toward bringing the law into disregard and disrespect than anything we have confronting us. Somebody is to blame for these delays and miscarriages in justice. Who is it?

WASHINGTON'S DIARY FOUND

York, Pa., Feb. 21.—Discovery of a lost diary kept by George Washington during the last year of his life was announced tonight by George R.
Prowell, curator and librarian of the Historical Society of York County.

"While searching thru unclassified documents in the library of the Department of State at Washington," he said, "another gentleman and myself found the 'lost diary' of Washington, written during the time he was President and until his death."

The story of the diary, he declared, never has been made public.

One of the first entries quoted is that written by Washington on his birthday, and in this connection a little known fact is brought to light—that in the last year of Washington's life the people of Virginia observed February 11 instead of February 22
as the anniversary of his birth.

Mr. Prowell explains this by pointing out that Washington was born in 1732, and it was not until twenty years later that the Gregorian calendar was accepted in England and the United States. Washington's birthday as a result, was recorded in the family Bible as February 11, 1732 (old style) and February 11 continued to be observed in Virginia until 1810.

On July 4, 1799, he celebrated Independence Day by attending a banquet at Kemps Tavern in Alexandria, given in his honor by the citizens.

July 9 was spent in writing his last will, which consisted of twenty-nine pages, all of which he wrote himself affixing his signature at the bottom of each page.

ROMA THIRD BIG SHIP TO WRECK IN 13 MONTHS

New York, Feb. 21.—The dirigible
Roma, which blew up today over Hampton Roads, was the third big airship to be destroyed in a spectacular mishap in the last thirteen months.

On August 24, 1921, the ZR-2, built by the British for purchase by the United States at a cost of $2,000,- 000 exploded over Hull, England, killing forty-two, including sixteen Americans.

On January 1, 1921, the R-34,
which flew from England to Long Island and back in the summer of 1919, the first airship to cross the Atlantic, was wrecked in a gale while tied outside her airframe in Howden, England.

Before the ZR-2 disaster, the greatest number killed in an airship accident in peace times was twenty-nine, the toll of the explosion of the German Zeppelin L-2 over the Johannisthal aerodrome on October 17, 1913.

TO PROTEST INCREASE BY STATE COMMISSION

W. C. Blankenship and County Attorney Otto C. Martin, accompanied by Mrs. Martin went to Frankfort yesterday where the former two will appear before the State Tax Commission in protesting the proposed increase of $1,350,000 on Ohio County's taxable property returned by the Commissioner D. E. Ward was unable to accompany other parties on account of illness.

FATAL DISASTER IN TRAIN WRECK

Thomas Holbrook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burch Holbrook, of South Carrollton, died in a Hospital at Detroit, Mich., last Sunday, as a result of an accident in a train wreck. He had been an engineer on a train running from Detroit to Chicago for about five years. The body arrived in Owensboro, his former home, Wednesday, where funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 2:00, at the home of his uncle Mr. R. R. Holbrook, with interment in Rose Hill cemetery. He was about thirty years of age, and is survived by his parents and one brother, Owen, of Indiana, and a number of other relatives. He was a nephew of Mr. J. D. Holbrook, of this city.

WASHINGTON COMMENT

When the Towner-Sterling bill passes the United States will have a Department of Education, with a Secretary in the Cabinet. One of the first tasks such a Department of Education must undertake is the review and classification of textbooks. The necessity for national information on books which teach national affairs is constantly being brought before the public, the most recent case being in the National Capital, where a certain textbook on history is under fire from citizens' associations as being historically inaccurate and socialistic in its tendencies.

Whether the book is good or bad is hardly a matter for determination by citizens' associations, no matter how patriotic. Only authority should be permitted to say what is, and what is not in a good school book.
The trouble with the average school-book selection authority is that it is biased by location and environment,
without a national viewpoint.

A Federal Department of Education would not be biased, and would either have a national viewpoint or be a complete failure. A list of adequate school books which had been carefully reviewed and classified by the national government would go far toward securing that uniformity in education and accuracy in the teaching of history which are in themselves a national bond and would be eagerly welcomed by local school boards everywhere.

Obviously no such list of books
would be issued as anything else than suggestions. When the Department of Agriculture tells farmers of a good fertilizer it does not require them to use it—only their brains and free choice! So it would be with the list of books, and, indeed, all the acts of the Department of Education
—they would be advisory only, and valuable in proportion to their education, not their mandatory, pronouncements.

It has been demonstrated impossible to make an omelette without breaking eggs. As an aftermath of the disarmament conference come wholesale "furloughs" from navy yards, and many a workman wonders where his next pay day is coming from.

No one, not even the navy-yard worker, quarrels with the necessity of reduction of labor forces on guns and ship equipment to keep faith with our part in the disarmament program. But is there any need to be inhuman about it? "Furlough" is euphemistic, but it is as effective as a discharge as far as the pay envelope is concerned. Had the "furlough" been given with a warning, or had the men been "furloughed" by fifties, or hundreds, rather than thousands at once much hardship and even actual suffering might have been saved.

This is a great and glorious country. But our government is not perfect, and when it is guilty of a callous disregard of the welfare of thousands of faithful servants it not only receives but deserves the condemnation of all right-thinking, inherently just and patriotic citizens.

A mayor who turned the worn-out fire horse out to starve when the motor truck was bought would be run out of town and office.

Yet faithful navy yard workers are "furloughed"—God save the mark!
—with no notice, and by thousands.
During the war navy-yard machinists were told it was a patriotic duty to refuse high wages in industry and
"stick by Uncle Sam."

Is there no one to tell Uncle Sam that his name stands before the world as meaning fair play?

COURT HOUSE CHIT CHAT

Last Friday afternoon a deputy sheriff of Muhlenberg County brought Eskel Kitchens, a former citizen of this County over from Central City on a warrant from the Ohio Quarterly Court, which accuses him of obtaining the signature of a number of citizens of the Cool Springs neighborhood to a note with fraudulent intent. Eskel's bond was fixed in the warrant at $750.00, but after it was apparent that he could not give such bond, he waived examining trial and was permitted to go on his own recognizance for his appearance at the next grand jury. Eskel contends that he only promised to pay the note out of the profits he should make on a job of cutting and hauling a certain body of timber, and that he was unable to pay the note because he made no profit on the job.

The Fiscal Court was in session a few days the first of the week for the purpose of making a settlement with ex-Sheriff S. A. Bratcher. The final settlement was effected to the satisfaction of Mr. Bratcher as well as the Court. Other business of routine nature was transacted.

Some little excitement was caused among people about the Sheriff's office Monday, when it was learned that Will Daugherty who was recently tried for larceny and sent to the Hopkinsville Asylum, had who is under indictment in Circuit Court charged with the offense of selling intoxicating liquors, had been at home for a week or more and had left, ostensibly to return to the Asylum, but had not reached the institution when communication was established therewith. It is understood that Daugherty reported in the vicinity of his home that he had been paroled from the Asylum for ten days,
but when officers of the institution were communicated with, it was learned that he had been paroled for a period of six months.

The week has brought a few developments in the dog owner delinquent license payment prosecutions. It has been discovered that the Quarterly Court is without jurisdiction to give a final trial of the cases, and that it is necessary before a final trial can be had that the offending ones be indicted by the grand jury in Circuit Court. The County Clerk has been uncertain as to whether he should issue license and has communicated with the State dog license department, but has received instructions from the Attorney General to issue license to anyone who applies for them. The Court house has been well filled each day with people for whom summons has been issued, and the dog license question has been discussed from every angle.

MRS. T. G. HUNTER

Mrs. T. G. Hunter died at her

the good old melodious fiddler. It suits us best.

We don't know whether Fonza

I. D. Claire and A. Cox seem to be

Speaking of Eck Rial and one

BEADS ODDLY STRUNG (By I. D. Claire.)

Perhaps no human being has experienced in life such a preponderance of happiness that he would, when advanced in age, elect to live the same life over again.

The Lord will no doubt shower unusual blessings on the members of the Kentucky Legislature for coming to His rescue in time of need.

"If the ex-service men," remarked a distinguished citizen to me this morning, "persist in rating themselves as hirelings, I favor granting them a bonus and then we can regard our debt to them finally discharged."

The circumstance of the origin of man upon the earth is unknown, and in the present state of knowledge unknowable. But these facts are known. The historian traces man's existence back to the time when he first recorded in crude symbols a record of his progress, and then the paleontologist, delving into caverns and earth deposits, traces him farther back to that remote period when he first advanced to the stage of manufacturing crude bone and stone implements. Beyond this to the scientific student all is simple conjecture. Evolution can not go behind the record of facts.

Universal peace and prohibition are objects worthy to strive for, but only the pitifully ignorant of human history will hope to achieve either in large measure.

The man who yearns to join in the universal scramble for material wealth that he may have leisure to read and observe and think and reflect upon his relation to the great whole, of which he is a part, becomes an outcast to all but a small company of his fellows but he finds himself in the company of kings.

Religion founded on authority is rapidly losing its hold on the minds of men and religion founded on reason and understanding must be offered in its stead. Not indeed, a new religion, but the old religion brought up to the measure of man's mental advancement.

If the physically strong man assaults a woman, a child or a cripple, public indignation clamors for punishment of the offender, but all about the intellectually strong are exploiting the intellectually weak and not a voice of protest is heard. It will not be always so.

If the United Mine Workers of America persist in their announced purpose of an increased wage the greatest struggle in the history of the coal industry will result. Real friends of the mine workers will hope they may yet recognize that the natural law of industry can not be cheated.

MRS. CHARLOTTE CARTER

Mrs. Charlotte M. Carter, aged 81 years, 7 months and 3 days, died Thursday of last week at the home of her sons, James and Henry Carter, near Narrows. The deceased lady was the widow of the late Wm. H. Carter, who was a union veteran of the war of 61-65.

Mrs. Carter was a devoted member of the Baptist church, a splendid type of woman and greatly respected by all of her many friends. Burial of the remains took place on the day following her death at the Smith burying grounds in the presence of a large crowd. She is survived by three sons, Messrs. Charlie, James and Henry Carter.

ED JACKSON DIES

Ed Jackson, aged 40, died at his home near Equality, Friday morning of last week. Mr. Jackson awoke at three o'clock suffering with a severe pain in his left arm. He called his wife who applied liniment and such remedies as were in the home and immediately telephoned for a physician. The pain shifted to the heart and he died at 4 o'clock, a short time before the arrival of the physician. Mr. Jackson had worked upon his farm the day prior to his death and was in apparent good health.

Burial of the remains took place on Saturday, at Equality. Mr. Jackson was a good citizen and well liked by all who knew him. Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, about nine years of age.

MRS. SARAH JANE SMITH

Daughter of S. M. and Elizabeth James. Born December 5, 1860, died February 11, 1922, baptized and annexed to the Church of Christ at Select, November 1882, of which church she was a member until her death. She was married to Wason Smith, December 23, 1886, and leaves a husband, one son, Earl Smith, bookkeeper for The Broadway Coal Co., three daughters, Mrs. Jessie Martin, Mrs. Goldie Leach, and Mrs. Olga Ranney; two brothers, J. S. and L. M. James, the latter of Texas; one sister, Mrs. Bettie Miller. Mourn not the dead who calmly lie By God's own hand composed to rest.

FARM DEPARTMENT.

Seasonal Tips For Gardeners.

During late February and early March is the time to start the war on insects by raking up and burning all trash in the garden. Many serious insects are harbored in this trash during the winter and early spring. If it is not cleaned up until later in the season, they are already active and cannot be destroyed by this method.

Those who have not made out their orders for garden seeds already will profit by doing so at once. Enough seeds should be ordered from some reliable seed house to last throughout the season. The best seeds are cheapest in the end.

Rotations of crops is as important in the garden as it is in the use of field crops. Plan your garden this year so that you will not have the same vegetable growing on the same ground that it did last year.

The most useful garden is the one that has a succession of crops throughout the season. This plan will necessitate several plantings of early vegetables such as radishes, onions and peas.

Save time and labor and keep down the weeds easier this year by planting the garden seeds in long rows. This allows the use of a wheel cultivator or even a horse cultivator in some cases. Beds of lettuce, onions and radishes are out of date.

Leave a place in the garden this year for spinach as it is one of the most healthful vegetables that can be grown. It is a quick maturing crop and will furnish a large amount of greens. For early greens, plant the last of March. Gardeners at the College of Agriculture say the Victoria, Bloomsdale or New Zealand are good varieties for Kentucky.

A few minutes spent in the garden each day is better than three hours once a week.

Doubled Acreage Of Soybeans Predicted.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 18.—Kentucky will grow about twice as many soybeans in 1922 as were grown in the State in 1921, according to indications being cited by crops specialists at the College of Agriculture. The increased popularity of this legume crop as a soil builder and feed for livestock together with a 50 per cent reduction in the price of seed are held responsible for the probable increase in acreage. Last year with seed as high as from four to six dollars a bushel, there was an increase of 100 per cent over the 1920 acreage in the main producing sections of the State, according to the specialists.

The Mammoth Yellow variety gives the greatest hay yield in Kentucky while the Haberlandt and Lexington are at present most largely used for planting in the same row and at the same time with corn. The supply of seed in the State is large enough to supply all Kentucky growers this year, the specialists say. About six pounds of seed are required for an acre.

Henderson Flock Leads In Production Of Eggs.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 18.—A flock of 179 White Wyandotte hens owned by J. T. Wilson, Fordsville, lead the State's demonstration flocks in January egg production with an average production of 12.1 eggs a hen, according to an announcement by J. H. Martin, in charge of poultry work at the College of Agriculture. This flock, which has produced an average of 24.6 eggs a hen since Nov. 1, 1921, also is the leading one to date.

A flock of 109 Rhode Island Reds owned by J. W. Munster, Lyons, Lawrence county, was second among the January high producers with a record of 10.2 eggs a hen. J. R. Wilson, Olaton, Ohio county, owned the third flock in the list, his 128 White Plymouth Rocks having produced an average of 10.1 eggs a hen.

Other owners among the first ten who had high producing flocks for the month were: Sue Allen (quick, Livia, McLean county; Mrs. J. A. Kern, Jeffersontown, Jefferson county; Mrs. J. W. Pope, Shepherdsville, Bullitt county; Mrs. Eugene Fulton, Parksville, Boyle county; William Coombs, Kirk, Breckinridge county; Mrs. M. H. Barnard, Ohio county and S. J. Howard, Henderson, Henderson county.

Jap Clover Proves Worth As Soil Builder and Feed.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 18.—Having demonstrated its usefulness both as a pasture crop and as a soil builder, Jap clover, frequently called Jap or Lespedeza, is proving to be a more valuable legume crop in Kentucky than most of the old well-known legumes, according to soils and crops specialists at the College of Agriculture, who are advocating the use of this crop to farmers of the State.

The crop already is spreading by its own efforts over much of the "laid out" land in the State and furnishing good grazing on several millions of acres of poor soil at a season of the year when pastures are likely to be short. Being a legume, it is a good soil builder. No soils are too poor or too sour for the clover, the specialists say, and it also has proved its usefulness on some of the better soils of the State.

It is seeded early in the spring, March or April being the best months. A good combination for poor land is five pounds of reseeded Red Top and 10 pounds of Japan clover an acre, according to the specialists.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

With LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease, Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions, and in order to cure it you must take an internal remedy. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Hall's Catarrh Medicine was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years. It is composed of some of the best tonics known, combined with some of the best blood purifiers. RED EMMA GIVES FEAR TO WEDEN

Nation Unable To Get Rid Of Unwelcome Plotters May Be Anarchist Center.

Stockholm, Feb. 18.—Sweden is facing a curious dilemma as the result of its well-meant hospitality in granting temporary asylum to Emma Goldman, Alexander Berkman and Alexander Shapiro, deported originally to Russia from the United States. Since this trio arrived several other Russian anarchists have come into the country.

As matters now stand Sweden may either have to stand the anarchists or cope with a movement said to be on foot, of making Stockholm an international anarchist center.

But to what country can these anarchists be reported? Nobody wants them. Since their arrival in Stockholm Emma Goldman and other anarchists from Russia have so roundly denounced the Soviet Government that if they are returned to Russia the Bolshevik authorities, never noted for their leniency, may send them all to jail or deal with them in a more summary fashion.

Germany already has put up the bars against these agitators, as was shown recently when Miss Goldman tried to enter Germany for the purpose of attending the international anarchist congress in Berlin. Freund, Austria's representative to this conclave was arrested on the border by the German police.

Now the Stockholm press states that a resolution was adopted at the Berlin anarchist congress to establish an international anarchist bureau in the Swedish Capital, presumably because Stockholm is now the temporary abiding place of so many leading anarchists.

The press emphasizes that it would be most unfortunate if Sweden's hospitality should be abused by thus making Stockholm an anarchist center and the same papers assert that energetic steps will be taken against any attempt of this character.

SHE LOOKS SO WELL AND HAPPY

See the rich, red blood, the sign of health, showing in her lovely cheeks.

Some women have naturally beautiful complexions that tell you there is plenty of richness in their blood. Their figures become well formed, supple, rounded, and graceful. Those are the results of rich, red blood, and plenty of it. There is no need of being thin and scrawny from poor blood. Get a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan—take it with your meals for a few weeks. It will give you plenty of red blood. By building up the blood, you give the entire system a chance to restore itself naturally, and that brings natural bloom and beauty and all the effects and joys of good health. Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan at your druggist's in liquid or tablet form.—Advertisement.

Lady, to salesman who had unrolled all the linoleum—Thank you, so much, my little boy has enjoyed it. I'll bring him tomorrow to see the carpets.—Success.

She (as they dance)—Where have I met you before? There is something very familiar in the way you put your arm around my waist.

He—Why, don't you remember? I was your very first husband.

DON'T LET LANDIS QUIT, FOE URGES

Impeachment Impossible If Resignation Is Accepted, Welty Writes Harding.

Washington, Feb. 20.—President Harding was asked today by former Congressman Benjamin F. Welty of Ohio, not to accept the resignation of Kenschaw Mountain Landis as Judge of the Federal court at Chicago.

If Judge Landis should be permitted to retire at this time, Welty declared in a letter to the President, it would be impossible to impeach him for accepting the position as high commissioner of baseball should Congress pass a law making it necessary for a Federal Judge to confine his activities to his judicial duties.

Although Welty's efforts during the last session of Congress to secure the impeachment of Landis for accepting a $50,000 a year job as baseball arbiter were futile, it was indicated by his letter to the President that he intended to push his fight against Landis despite his retirement from Congress.

"If you should accept the resignation of Judge Landis," Welty wrote the President, "you will take away the impeachment jurisdiction from Congress. The Senate held in the Blount and McKim cases that persons cannot be impeached after they cease to be civil officers of the United States."

"If the Sixty-seventh Congress makes this character of employment unlawful it necessarily follows that Judge Landis will be impeached unless clemency is extended in his case."

"The American game of baseball sport cannot continue as a national sport if those making millions by illegal methods are protected while the baseball players are punished for throwing the game."

"Congress has made it unlawful for a Government official or employee to receive any salary in connection with his services as such official or employee from any source other than the Government of the United States. Can the government make an exception to this law in case of a Federal Judge who bestirres the judicial emine by selling his birthright for a mess of pottage?"

Fifteen Words In Landis' Letter Of Resignation

Washington, Feb. 20.—The resignation of Federal Judge Landis, announced Saturday in Chicago, was received today at the White House. It was written in Judge Landis' own handwriting, was dated Chicago, Feb. 18, and read as follows:

"Dear Mr. President: I resign as District Judge for the Northern District of Illinois, effective March 1, 1922. Very respectfully,

"KENSCHAW MOUNTAIN LANDIS."

SPRUCE LOG, 10 FEET WIDE BREAKS MILL'S MACHINERY

Honolulu, Wash., Feb. 18.—An enormous spruce log, ten feet in diameter, believed the largest ever cut in this section, recently was sawed into 16,000 board feet of lumber here.

When first put on the saw, the big log broke the mill machinery and was not cut until repairs were made.

Some time ago a larger log was brought here but no mill would tackle it and it was placed in a Hoquiam park for exhibition purposes.

Apple—Did you find that corn cure was good for your corn?

Bodwell—Good for it! I should say so. After only one application the corn had grown till it was so big I couldn't get my shoe on.

IRISH CURRENCY ISSUE DISCUSSED

Bankers Oppose Free State Proposal Would Hamper Trade.

Dublin, Feb. 18.—Proposals for a new Irish currency and Irish postage stamps are being discussed by the Free State authorities.

Banking circles here are said to be strongly opposed to any alteration in the currency on the ground that it will hamper trade and cause complications by the establishment of yet another fluctuating "foreign exchange," but national sentiment may sweep these objections aside. Some predict that before the end of the year Irish printing presses will be turning out Irish treasury notes.

Reckoning by pounds, shillings and pence doubtless will continue for some time, and English silver and copper will continue to circulate; but it is anticipated that the Free State will adopt the decimal system of coinage as soon as practicable and that Irish dollars and cents, or whatever their equivalent Gaelic names may be, ultimately will take the place of the sterling money.

As for postage stamps, the proposal is that Ireland shall content herself for the present with making an arrangement with Great Britain for printing a surcharge inscription, probably consisting of a shamrock, or harp, combined with the word "Eire" in Irish characters on the face of the stamps now in use.

Later on, the Free State will design its own stamps, and they are not likely to bear the English king's image.

GOOD TIMES RETURN HOOVER'S FORECAST

Low Freight Rates Urged For Farmer,
R. V. Labor Board Praised
By Commerce Head.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Predicting a resumption of great prosperity, praising the Republican Congress for the establishment of the Railway Labor Board for the peaceful adjustment of disputes, and urging means of providing work for 600,000 men now unemployed, Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, in an address to the Interstate Commerce Commission, asks for new development of American railways.

In what is regarded as one of the most important economic statements of the Harding Administration he says:

"In responding to the invitation to discuss some of the problems present in your general railroad investigations, I shall devote myself to three of the railway topics which especially arise from the present economic situation.

"I do not need to review at length that we are recovering from the destruction and inflation of the greatest war in history, that we are suffering from the waste, the extravagance, and overexpansion of the postwar boom, and that the war has brought about great shifts in the movement and price levels of commodities between nations.

"I would, however, suggest that it might be profitable for our people to get a somewhat clearer perspective of our own and the world's troubles and problems. Even a superficial survey must bring us out of an atmosphere of gloomy introspection into an assuring realization that, great as our dislocations may seem, we are relatively in an enviable position. Our nation is unshaken, and as a people we are getting our bearings in a world of perplexing economic adjustments. While there is unemployment and lack of profit taking, we are free of panic. We are comparatively more restless than injured. For instance, as heavy as our tax burden is it is still less than one-half as great in proportion to our national productivity as the other states in the war.

"The violence of our readjustment, however, is without parallel, and we sometimes tend to color our measures for the future by the depression we are in. The fact is that we must predicate all plans for the future on the ultimate return of the American people to a normal economic activity with our annual progress in the expansion of our production, of our plant and equipment, of our skill and our efficiency. There can be no question that this return will take place, and no responsible body will approach our problems on any other basis. Not one of us would submit to the charge that we were not prepared to bet against any odds upon the future of the United States. Our problem is to expedite this recovery—to speed up employment of our workers, and thereby find market for our farmers.

"If we look at the national economic situation as a whole, the greatest impulse that can be given to recovery from any source whatever is a reduction of rates on primary commodities combined with the immediate resumption of railway construction and equipment. The first depends upon reduction of operating costs, the second upon restoration of credit for our railways.

"One thing is absolute. Our transportation facilities are below the needs of our country, and unless we have a quick resumption of construction the whole community—agricultural, commercial and industrial—will be gasping from a strangulation caused by insufficient transportation the moment that our business activities resume. For the past five years we have had no consequential expansion to our railway transportation machine. With but one interval of nine months in 1918 and 1919 we had a car shortage throughout the whole of the years 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919, and 1920. This shortage rose to as high as 160,000 cars, with a corresponding shortage of motive power. We paid tremendous sums in commercial losses and unemployment in consequence. We laid it onto the war. We should lay it onto our lack of foresight and antagonism to railroads.

"Few people seem to realize the amount of expansion in our transportation machine necessary to keep pace with the growth of the country. And an equal few seem to have any notion of the price we pay for not having it. Our country is more dependent upon railway transport than any other. All others have comparatively greater coast lines and internal waterways. The experience of the 20 years before the war has shown that we must build an extension of lines, including terminal facilities, additional sidings etc., every year equal to the construction of a new railway from New York to San Francisco. We must add at least 120,000 cars and 2,500 locomotives annually to our equipment. Since we entered the war in 1917 we have constructed at least 10,000 miles of railway less than our increasing population and economic development called for, and we are behind in rolling stock by about 4,000 locomotives and 200,000 cars. I wish to emphasize that unless we can have an immediate resumption of construction and equipment of our commercial community will pay the cost of the whole of them in their losses of a single season. The very moment that we reach anything like normal business we shall see a repetition of car shortage, followed by an increase in the cost of coal to the consumer from $1 to $3 a ton; we shall again see premiums of 20 cents a bushel for the use of car for moving grain; we shall, in fact, see a shortage of commodities to the consumer; and we shall see slumps upon the heads of the producers. We shall see factories filled with orders again closed for lack of cars; we shall see large intermittency in employment; and we shall see the usual profiteering in commodities due to a stricture between the producer and consumer.

"There would be no difficulty whatever, by basing such losses on the experiences we have already had to calculate a loss to the American people of a billion dollars for each one of these periodic transportation shortages.

"Furthermore, there is nothing that is so irreparable a loss to the nation as idle shops and idle men. Today we have both. There is nothing that will so quickly start the springs of business and employment as an immediate resumption of construction and equipment of the railways. When business does resume we shall need all of our capacity for the production of consumable goods. We shall not only find it strangled for lack of transportation, but will find ourselves plunging into the manufacture of this very railway equipment and construction in competition with consumable goods for materials and labor. Herein lies the basic cause of destructive price inflation and booms, with all their waste and overexpansion. In times of depression we should prepare for the future, and by doing so we can cure the depression itself.

"If we examine the fundamental reasons for failure to resume equipment we will find them in the loss of confidence in railways as an investment and the competition of tax-free securities. We have passed the period of credit strain in this depression. Surplus capital is pouring by hundreds of millions monthly into tax-free securities and foreign loans and yet our railways are unable to finance the most moderate of construction programs. The confidence of the public in railway investments was at so low an ebb before the war that finance by the issue of common and preferred stocks had become impossible and railway expansion was living on bond issues. The confidence of and assurance and continuity in earning power to cover this burden of bonds has been even lowered since the war began because of uncertainties of both rising and falling prices, of rising and falling wages, of rising and falling rates, preventing all regularity of earnings upon which an investor could be convinced, even if other difficult factors entered into the problem. I see no occasion to go into the labyrinth of past railway finance, its propriety or lack of propriety, its foolishness or its skill. That generation is gone by. This commission approaches the financial problems of the railways upon the actual value not upon their issues of securities, and I think it is we are living for the future, not the past. We want transportation and we want it with the values of private initiative and clean public service.

"If we look to the immediate future, with its complete necessity of paring the railway earnings down to little more than bond interest, until we give relief to the shipper (and thus the primary foundation to business recovery) I can see little likelihood of convincing the investor as to his margins of safety. There is an atmosphere that our railways will never again earn profits, and that they are not as an industry worthy of investment, and that because private investors will not come to their assistance nobody can do anything.

"Far from it being impossible for our railways again to return to a profitable footing, I believe it is possible to demonstrate that on an average they will become very profitable. If we assume that the reduction of prices and wage levels will settle at a plane no lower than 50 per cent over prewar, and if we assume that the present rates are to maintain, and if we assume restored traffic, then the earnings of our railways would exceed 15 per cent on the whole of the commission's tentative valuation. Surely there is room here for safety to investment as well as relief to the shipper.

"But the circumstances being as they are, confidence being at a low ebb, we do not have the equipment necessary for our business. We are driving headlong for a setback to our whole commerce the very moment that we begin to get on our feet.

"In these circumstances it seems to me vital that the railways as our greatest industry should propose a courageous program of broad visioned betterments, and if necessary the Government should consider giving the use of its superior credit. It would not cost the taxpayer a cent to give the Government guaranty to equipment trusts upon the primary responsibility of the railways, the proceeds devoted entirely to improvement and equipment. This is no proposal to take money from the taxpayer. It is a proposal to save him from paying treble the amount of his guaranty in profiteering and losses. It will render a reduction of rates earlier, for unless something is done the improvements will have to be paid over years out of increased rates. Nor would we lose a cent upon the guaranty, for if American railways can not earn interest upon their borrowings let us throw up our hands and prepare for a second Russia.

"A real program of construction would in its various ramifications give relief to five or six hundred thousand of our unemployed. It would enable even added numbers to increase their standard of living, and thus give increased market to the produce of our farmers. Our farmers who look to foreign markets for their surplus should stop to consider that our home consumption of meat decreased nearly 7 pounds per capita in 1921, mostly owing to unemployment, and that if this decrease could be overcome it would be worth more than a 35 per cent increase in exports.

"We talk glibly of giving billions of credits to foreign countries to increase our farm exports. I wish to say, with all responsibility for the statement, that a billion dollars spent upon American railways will give more employment to our people more advance to our industry, more assistance to our farmers, than twice that sum expended outside the frontiers of the United States, and there will be greater security for the investor.

"Finally, I want to refer to the veritable witches' cauldron being fed constantly with hates distilled from the misdeeds of railway promoters in the past, from the conflicts between the railways and their workmen. From all the confusion that arises from it we destroy our railways and destroy ourselves. With this commission, on one hand, assuring honesty in finance, justice to the shipper and the railway investor, with the Railway Labor Board assuring justice to workers, and above all, with a great spirit of public service in our generation of railway managers, it is time to call off the witches and take some vision of our national situation if we are to pull ourselves out of this depression.

"If I were to discuss the rates charged today I should say at once that a decrease in passenger rates is not nearly so vital to the community as freight rates, for passenger rates do not enter into the 'spread' in proportion to the relative volume of earnings. If I were examining the freight rates I should at once say that coal, metals, wood and agricultural and other producers' goods should be reduced to the bottom before 1 c. l. and class rates are touched.

"I would be willing to go even further and say that I am convinced that even if the commission cannot at the present moment justifiably reduce railway incomes a single dollar it is warranted in investigating the possibility of some relief to the more distressed commodities by a revision of some rates upward. There is perhaps no great field for changes in this direction, but it is worth inquiry. As mentioned above, an economic analysis of our industry will show that 1 c. l. and class rates are far too low compared to the rates on primary commodities.

"Determination of anything in the nature of permanent rate basis is in my own view impossible at the present time because:

"The last five years of changing administration, irregular traffic, and widely fluctuating wages and prices of materials give us but little reliable historical criteria upon which to base the future. We are in the midst of violent economic readjustments, of a profound industrial depression. No one can determine to what plane the reduction in operating costs will settle. No one can estimate the volume of traffic that are probable for any particular period ahead. It appears to me, therefore, that the commission will need of temporize the situation for some time and that its conclusion may well fall into three periods:

"First, The immediate present.

"Second, During the early period of decreasing costs and increasing efficiency and slowly recovering

"Third. Normal operations. "If we survey the results of the past year in the application of present costs and rates we find many railways failing to earn interest upon their borrowed capital; we find some others more fortunately situated who have earned dividends on their share capital. One or two exceptions of low bonded indebtedness have done extraordinarily well on situation by districts, in order that their share capital. If we survey the single instances do not mislead us, we will find that the whole of the class 1, southern roads, barely covered bond interest, while the most fortunate group, the western roads, show an earning of only 4 per cent in 1921 upon tentative valuation. Moreover, it is obvious that maintenance has been held to a low level.

"The present earnings in their perilous closeness to bond obligations seem to me to dispose of the question of immediate important rate relief if we do not wish widespread receivership and shocks to our whole commercial fabric."

Dollars and Cents.

Counting it only in dollars and cents, how much did that last cold cost you? A man may not always stop work when he has a cold, but perhaps it would be better if he did. It takes about ten days to get completely rid of a cold under the usual treatment. That time can be much shortened by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and proper care of yourself, in fact, a bottle of this remedy in the house is a mighty good investment during the winter and spring months.

Dingus—Did you follow the advice given in the newspapers and do your Christmas shopping early?

Podunk—No; I was the man who started the movement. I got everybody else to hustle around and get their shopping done, and then I went in and did mine on the day before Xmas, without being hurried or jostled, for the stores were almost empty.

WHITE HOUSE IS RADIO EQUIPPED

Wireless Talk And Music Get Government's Attention.

Washington, Feb. 17.—A recent cabinet meeting resulted in the President directing Secretary of Commerce Hoover to call a conference of experts of the army and navy and from commercial life, with scientific authorities to consider how far the United States government should go in the control of wave lengths in wireless telegraphy and telephony.

Plans are under consideration by which the White House will be equipped with a complete wireless telephone outfit, by which the President may "listen in" direct to the wireless news which is sent through the air.

The department of Commerce has just prohibited the recently inaugurated process of "broadcasting" by which wireless telephone concerts, sermons, daily news, stock market and sporting reports are sent out. The prohibition resulted from failure of amateurs to confine the tuning of their instruments to the legal wave length of 300 meters, which has produced much confusion and interruption to commercial and government wireless. New regulations are promised and a more strict enforcement of the law proposed.

Secretary Wallace, of the Department of Agriculture, yesterday predicted that it would be only a short time before "individual farmers everywhere can install receiving sets at small expense and get frequent daily reports from the principal grain and live stock markets, weather forecasts and important news."

The chief engineer of the Signal Corps research laboratory has perfected a "wired wireless superphone" which may be attached to any existing telephone line without interference with it, and by means of which a conversation entirely separate from the "regular" telephone conversation may be carried on with perfect secrecy, no operator or "central" not provided with the new apparatus being able to "listen in" to the "superphone" conversation.

Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Rutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many dollars. . . . I don't see how any family can hardly go without it. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it."

FOUR-POWER PACT

Administration Leaders To Confer With Harding This Morning.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The progress of the four-power Pacific treaty in the Senate again was interrupted today while administration leaders conferred among themselves and prepared to seek the advice of President Harding whether to accept the blanket reservation proposed by those who are opposing unreserved ratification.

Contrary to the expectation of senators who had sponsored the reservation administration acceptance of it was withheld at today's session of the Foreign Relations Committee and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts the Republican leader and committee chairman arranged to confer tomorrow morning with the President.

At the White House Mr. Lodge is expected to describe in detail the situation in the committee; a majority of whose members are said to have indicated they would support the reservation regardless of the stand taken by the administration. What the Senate leader's own opinion may be regarding the proposal has not been definitely revealed but Republican committee members supporting it still predicted tonight that both Mr. Lodge and Mr. Harding eventually would decide not to interpose serious opposition.

Harding May Agree, Belief.

Heretofore officials close to the President have declared he held strongly to the opinion that no reservations were necessary, although at the same time it has been said that he did not desire to become a stilet for Senate acceptance of the treaty without the dotting of an "i" or the crossing of a "t". His decision is expected to hinge on whether the proposed reservation, which provides that every adjustment reached under the treaty shall be subject to the review of Congress, impairs or embarrasses the purposes of the four-power arrangement.

It is not considered unlikely that the whole Senate situation will also be taken into consideration by President Harding and Senator Lodge before adopting a course of action. With administration acceptance of the blanket reservation assured, it is conceded that the committee will be in a position to vote promptly and almost unanimously a favorable report on the treaty itself. But with that acceptance withheld, it is the apparent purpose of the reservationists to attempt to put thru the committee a series of more specific qualifications, leading to considerable debate and a long delay.

One of these supplemental reservations, attempting to define in detail the term "rights" as used in the treaty, was put into the committee hopper today by Senator Johnson, Republican, California. Like the blanket reservation offered by Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut, it went over without action pending Mr. Lodge's visit to the White House. Should a negative reply be brought back to the capitol tomorrow by the committee chairman, it is considered likely that several other proposed reservations will be placed before the committee with the support of a number of Republicans, as well as Democratic senators.

In the background of the committee situation, on the other hand, is the situation in the Senate itself, where the administration senators believe that no reservation, regardless whether it bears the approval of a majority of the committee members, will ever be adopted. It is possible that the administration forces will decide to acquiesce passively in a reservation program in the committee without actually approving it, and then make a fight on the Senate floor to have it defeated.

Within the committee the fight against reservations is being led by Senator Kellogg Republican Minnesota who predicted tonight that neither the President nor Senator Lodge ever would consent to the Brandegee proposal. Senators New, Indiana, and McCumber, North Dakota, Republicans, and Williams, Democrat, Miss., were said to share the views of Senator Kellogg, while Senator Lodge reserved judgment and all the other eleven Republican and Democratic members gave indications that they were favorably disposed toward the blanket reservation.

While the committee continued its deliberations on the four-power pact today the Senate began debate on the separate treaty between the United States and Japan relating to Yap and other former German islands of the Pacific. Mr. Lodge explained the treaty at length, characterizing it as securing all the rights the United States ever desired in the former German possessions and Senator France, Republican, Maryland, attacked it as a repudiation of Republican platform pledges and a part of a "league of nations" plan which would lay the foundation for a new world war. Tomorrow Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, is to address the Senate, taking exception to some of the treaty provisions.

NEW YORK "FLU" DEATHS GROW; CASES DECREASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Deaths in this city from pneumonia and influenza which totaled seventy-three Saturday, reached 152 today, according to Health Commissioner Copeland. He asserted that the increase was due to the fact that Sunday's report was included with that of today. New cases of the diseases showed a decrease today, with 184 pneumonia as compared with 316 Saturday and 121 of influenza as compared with 161.

This was the smallest number of influenza cases to be reported in any day since February 1. Dr. Copeland predicted that by the end of this week, the number of deaths from influenza would be down to normal.

IRRESPONSIBLE LAW CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Prevent Radicals Blamed On So Much Fanatical Legislation In U. S.

Washington, Feb. 23 (Capital News Service).—Commenting on the need to combat radical ideas in American life, prominent lawmakers at the Capitol say that much disrespect for law can be traced to the enactment of foolish, unnecessary and hopelessly out-of-date statutes.

In Kentucky a bill has been introduced in the legislature making it illegal to teach Darwinism in the public schools.

In Massachusetts a cripple has been arrested and fined for playing a game of checkers outdoors on Sunday.

A Kansas City school official believes that jazz music has a similar effect upon young people to strong drink and urges a jazz prohibition movement.

Says the Philadelphia Public Ledger: "Such superprudence and hyperphobias is calculated to disgust the average law-abiding citizen, and does not tend to stabilize that government by the consent of the governed which makes for public decency and civic morality."

Mrs. Margot Asquith, famous English political leader, says "Americans are not free—you overdo your prohibitive laws and then do not enforce them."

Legislation which attempts to foist upon a long-suffering majority the personal prejudice or the fanatical ideas of some isolated reformer invariably does more harm than good, brings the law-making body enacting such statutes into disrepute, and, by making the source of law ridiculous, decreases respect for other laws well conceived and thoughtfully passed.

Fear Extinction of Chamols.

Extinction of chamols in the mountains of Savoy in Italy and Switzerland, is threatened, just as the buffalo disappeared from the western American prairies, and animal lovers there are preparing to petition their governments, demanding the protection of the chamols. An investigation of the Grenoble district showed that the war was responsible for the new devastation of the chamols. Before the war only a few mountaineers took out hunting licenses. In fact, comparatively few of them could bear the expense of buying a good rifle. After the armistice, however, thousands of veterans returning to the Savoy mountains took with them rifles and good supplies of ammunition, which proved useful in combating the increasing cost of living. So general has hunting now become in the mountains that departmental officials say that unless these nimble animals are protected for at least two years they will become extinct inside of 20 years.

Holds Blue Ribbon of Atlantic.
The Manzanilla is still the greatest of all Atlantic flyers, and she still holds the blue ribbon. She has made the North Atlantic crossing (west-bound) in four days, ten hours, 41 minutes, at an average speed of 26.06 knots per hour. During the war she averaged 27.01 knots per hour in a day's run of 676 knots, and has also, for part of a voyage, averaged the high speed of 27.47 knots. A few days ago the Cunard liner Aquitania made the passage in five days, 16 hours and 57 minutes, which is the best time made by any trans-Atlantic steamer since the war, while the White Star steamer Olympic made the trip in five days, 18 hours and 18 minutes.

Not Wholly Unselfish.

She—Does the fact that I have money make any difference to you, dear?
He—Of course it does, my own. It is such a comfort to know that if I should die you would be provided for.
She—But suppose I should die first?
He—Then I would be provided for.

AUNT GLORY'S TEST

By MOLLIE MATHER

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

"My dear," said Hildegard's mother, "Benny Travers is a nice boy, but if he ever intends to make anything of himself, he had better begin now. And if I were you, I'd wait, before bestowing too much of my friendship, until he showed some promise of making that start. And—"

"Ben," remarked that young man's mother, "what in the world do you find to admire in that Hildegard Kane? She doesn't move in your sister's circle, you know, and both your father and I would be pleased, if you'd confine your attentions there."

So the trouble began: Hildegard and Benny, seated on a mossy green bank, discussed cordially their elders' objections.

"What mother wants," said Ben, "is for me to marry a social success. I haven't been blind to my sister June's game, either. This is the third time she's had that Barlow girl to visit us, and I'm supposed to chafe her all over every time she comes. But I'll marry the girl I want, and that's you, Hildegard."

His companion nodded pleasantly.

"And mother evinces old-fashioned ideas about nearly anything, and being settled in business," she remarked. "I know all the time that she is fairly throwing Jack Barlowe at my head; just because his mother happens to be my mother's best friend, and Jack is doing well in his uncle's law office. Even if you have no particular ambition at present, Benny dear, you do make a jolly companion, and you don't have to worry about making money for some time, do you?"

"Not while dad has his pile," Ben comfortably replied. Then he bent over and kissed Hildegard.

"I don't quite want you to do that yet," she said doubtfully.

"But we are engaged, aren't we?" he asked in an injured tone.

The girl considered. "Well, maybe we'll call it that," she agreed, "between ourselves."

"In the meantime," the young man began eagerly, "you will let me take you around occasionally, won't you, Hildegard? And perhaps we might go for our week ends, out to your Aunt Glory's farm."

Hildegard beamed admiringly. "You do think of the nicest things," she said. "Always I have told Aunt Glory all my secrets, and she doesn't boss or irritate me like mother."

Her young lover arose and gave her his hand.

"It makes me darn mad to have people trying to ruin me," he said hotly. "Mother's objecting will only make me see more of you than ever. We will surprise them all, sweetheart, one of these days."

"We will," smiled Hildegard demurely. She winked on, smiling, his arm about her.

Aunt Glory listened earnestly to her niece's confidence.

"Of course, if you are both sure that you love each other, all will come right," she said. "But sometimes we make mistakes. There was a young man that I knew in my youth, and I had not known him long, when I was quite certain that I could not live without him. So I cast aside a faithful love of years—and afterward found that my new fancy had been an illusion. We have to be with people a good deal, sometimes," sighed Aunt Glory, "in order to know, not only them, but ourselves. Do you think that your mother would allow you and Mr. Travers to spend a week with me on the farm?"

"I am certain she would not," mourned Hildegard; "she thinks I see too much of Benny now."

"Perhaps," considered Aunt Glory, "she might be in favor of the idea if I made a house party of it, and invite your friend Jack, an well. And—why not have the desired Miss Barlowe to make up the four?"

Hildegard laughed. "You are the wisest thing!" she exclaimed. "Of course mother will be fairly eager if Jack is to be there."

Aunt Glory's farmhouse was a picturesque place, and its amusements were many.

"Regular country club entertainment," Benny described it; while the intolerant Miss Barlowe warned into good nature. Hildegard, from her accepted place at Ben's side in the veranda or garden, watched with unaccountable impatience, Betty Barlow's enjoyment of Jack Denning's play.

They made a good pair at tennis, and one evening, as she played absent-mindedly upon the piano, for Ben's amusement, she was piqued to find that he had fallen asleep in his chair.

Hildegard's mother at the end of the week received a letter; after reading the first sentence she turned, white-faced, to her husband.

"It's from Hildegard," she said weakly; "she is engaged!"

Then she cried, "Why, the child says that she loves Jack, that they only found out how much they cared for each other away out there in the country."

"We were always happy just to be near each other," Hildegard says.

"What," father asked succinctly, "about that Travers fellow she was so fond of?"

"I'll read you Hildegard's own words," the mother said: "As for Ben and me, we bored each other to death; I never knew that his society was so tiresome. Anyway, Betty Barlow is more Ben's kind."

NEWS OF AMERICAN LEGION HAPPENINGS

"I think that I am 32 years of age. I am five feet nine, and weigh 130 pounds. My eyes are gray and I have blond hair. I believe I was a soldier. If anyone can tell me who I am or anything about my past, please telephone the police."

This is what a clean-cut young man told attendants in a Los Angeles, Cal., hospital. He wore an American Legion button, and Los Angeles posts of the Legion are helping him find himself.

Falling in his attempt to commit suicide by freezing in snow-drift at Emporia, Kans., Chester Hagerman, jobless war veteran, is being sought by the American Legion. A woman of Meileine Lodge says her son, who bore that name, was reported "killed in action," and a body, supposed to have been his, brought from France for burial here—Emporia, Kans.

Lined up patiently for hours in advance, hundreds of tattered ex-soldiers received shoes, overcoats, and children's garments from the American Legion distributing committee in New York.—New York City.

A Spanish bull fight will be staged in Madison Garden, New York, by an American Legion post. One stipulation is that the bull shall not be hurt.—New York City.

Possessing all the requisites for a dance except music, American Legion men in Lincoln, Neb., called on an ex-gob for help. He rigged up a radiophone and turned in on an orchestra 1,000 miles away.—Lincoln, Neb.

The Star Spangled Banner, rendered on a handorgan with a monkey accompanist, is taboo with the American Legion in New York. A bill before the legislature would prohibit collections being taken for playing the national anthem.—Albany, N. Y.

A cemetery in Fairmont, W. Va., where Civil War soldiers were buried had become a thicket of briars. The American Legion cleaned it up to do reverence to the dead heroes.—Fairmont, W. Va.

Plans for a Connecticut state hospital for ex-service men have been endorsed by Governor Lake. It will be named for Frederick W. Galbraith late commander of the American Legion.—Hartford, Conn.

A federal appropriation of $16,400,000 for hospitals for wounded ex-soldiers has been asked by the American Legion in New York, where continued investigation has revealed inadequate facilities.—New York City.

"These firemen must be a frivolous set," said Mrs. Dumppling.

"Why?" asked her husband.

"I read in the paper that after the fire was under control the firemen played all night on the ruins. Why didn't they go home and go to bed like sensible men. Instead of romping about like children?"

FORT WITTHOOD INDIANS, BUT FALLS TO ECONOMY

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 20.—Fort Apache, a romantic frontier military post and center of the Indian fighting in the early days of Arizona, is to be abandoned soon. It was announced at headquarters of the Eighth Corps area today.

The famous fort, which is located in the mountains in the center of the hunting grounds of the once fierce tribe of Apache Indians, has lost its strategic value and, sixty miles from the railroad, its upkeep is too expensive for the War Department's plan of economy, it was stated. As soon as the supplies at the fort can be hauled to the railroad the troops will be withdrawn.

Fort Apache was established in 1877 when the Apache Indians became troublesome.
